Mention "Heritage Land Rover" and most people will think of the limited edition models that Land Rover produced to commemorate the end of the line for the Defender model in 2015. What many people will not realise is that Land Rover originally produced a Heritage model back in 1999. Originally it was planned to build 300 examples, but in the end only 270 were manufactured. Of the 270 produced there were 189 of the 90 version (of these 76 were Pastel Green and 113 Bronze Green) and 81 of the 110 (15 Pastel Green and 66 Bronze Green) They were based on the County station wagon specification, but with a host of
